

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A method and system for execution of high performance, multiple-precision multiply-and-add operations that take advantage of native multiply-and-add instruction of modern processors. A careful choice of instruction ordering leads to highly parallelizable groups of instructions, the instructions in each group independent of the results generated by other instructions of the group.